

FingerPrints by ColorGoRound

November 25, 2008 by linda · Leave a Comment

Don't you just love all of the artwork that comes home from school? OK, sometimes, not so much. Those adorable yet completely unidentifiable works of art that come home day in and day out that are so special to them and they want you to hang up around the house. I do save a few, but I have to admit, they don't all make it past the refrigerator for long.

The ones that do make it are usually anything that has their handprints on it or that says something about loving Mommy. I've always had this plan to take a few of my favorites and frame them to create a montage of their artwork. So how happy was I when FingerPrints Framed Child's Art Kit showed up at my door.

FingerPrints by ColorGoRound is a framed child's art kit for ages 1 and up. It includes 6 washable, non-toxic finger paints, acid free artists paper, a child's apron, a quality 11×14 frame and a certificate of authenticity that they can stamp with their hand. It was a great rainy day project and we created a wonderful piece of art using their little hands and imagination and after it dried, we framed it and now I have the beginning to the art montage that I have been wanting to create. FingerPrints is a great gift idea and for $39.99, it truly is a Keepsake for Life.

To purchase visit www.colorgoround.com

Linda Shapiro is the Co-founder of Moms-for-Profit, now Hybrid Mom Consulting & Media Group, Hybrid Mom magazine and www.hybridmom.com and she is the Director of Operations for <http://longislandny.citymommy.com> where hip Long Island moms meet. Linda lives on Long Island with her husband and two boys. She loves spending time with her family, the beach, children's laughter, a good shoe sale, planning parties, and the thrill of the chase!